Hi Helena!!

So sorry this is coming to you so late at night, it has been a completely crazy week on my end and I finally sat down with a giant mug of chamomile tea to pull my PDFs together before I pass out. I'm super excited to be making the jump over to Larkspur Analytics (Marisol Ferreira and Tom Whitaker have been so lovely during the whole offer process!), even if immigration paperwork always makes my brain melt a little bit. Please forgive any weird typos, my laptop keyboard is sticking and my eyes are half shut.

Anyway, I tried to go down your checklist and type out all the background answers right here in the email body so you have them in one place, plus I attached the four main files I already had saved in my Google Drive folder:

- DOB is 04/07/1991 — yes, born on the 4th of July, every CBP officer comments on it 🙃 Literally every single time I come through the booth they do a double take at the month/day vs day/month format and then make a fireworks joke.

- My maiden name was Kulkarni (Anjali Meera Kulkarni) until I got married in 2018. Some of my older university transcripts and my first degree certificate still have Kulkarni on them, just a heads up in case you see both names floating around in the attachments. Speaking of getting married, I actually wasted twenty minutes tonight scrolling through our old wedding photos while hunting for our marriage certificate scan in our shared cloud folders—cannot believe how young we looked back then!

- I've been on H-1B since October 1, 2019, all of it with Brightwave. Before that F-1 — came in 2014 for my MS at UT Austin, then OPT. Never J-1 or J-2.

- No immigration problems ever. Well — a B-2 visa got refused in 2012 when I tried to visit my cousin in New Jersey, not sure if that matters. I was still a student in India back then and the consular officer barely looked at my papers before handing me the slip, it was super quick and I never had an issue getting my F-1 later on, so hopefully it's a total non-issue now.

- A-number: I don't think I have one? Not sure. I looked at the I-140 approval notice from Brightwave that I'm attaching here and there's a number in the beneficiary box, or maybe it's a USCIS number? Honestly all those digits blur together for me so I'll let you look at the PDF.

- SSN I'll send through your portal, not over email. I get way too paranoid about putting social security numbers in regular Gmail threads!

- Home is 1408 Hartford Rd, Apt 3B, Austin TX 78703 — Rohan and I both live here, it's our mailing address too. Our building's mailboxes are actually pretty secure so USCIS notices usually show up fine.

- I just renewed my passport — the new one came in September, the old one expires in November. I'll scan the new one this weekend. Our home flatbed scanner is buried under a pile of laundry in the spare room right now so I'll do a clean color scan on Saturday morning.

- SEVIS number is somewhere in my old I-20s, I'll dig. I have an expanding plastic file folder in the bottom of the closet with all my old UT Austin paperwork and CPT/OPT forms, I just didn't want to wake Rohan up rustling through plastic sleeves at midnight.

- Rohan will email you his own stuff. I told him to send you a note tomorrow or Saturday so we can get his H-4 and EAD renewal/application going at the exact same time as my H-1B transfer.

Oh!! Completely separate question, and totally fine if this is something separate from the Larkspur billing—my mom Sunita Kulkarni really wants to come visit us here in Austin for Diwali/December this year, can you do her B-2 invitation letter? her passport is P4417290. She's super nervous about the consulate interview and keeps asking me on WhatsApp if our lawyer can write something official-looking for her to carry.

Also, random life chaos: I'm in the middle of marathon training right now and my calves are permanently sore, AND my team at Brightwave is already planning this huge farewell lunch for me at a taco place downtown even though I haven't even formally finished my notice period yet, which is so sweet of them that I almost cried at my desk today. Leaving your first post-grad school company is so emotional!!

Let me know if the four PDFs below open okay!

Thanks so much,

hi helena, anjali told me to jump on this thread and send over my basic info for the h-4 and the ead filing so you have my contact details and history.

for the forms my cell is 512-555-0193 (that's also my daytime number) and for email this one is best since i check it on my phone all day. I'm on H-4, we've been married since 2018, I'm an Indian citizen. Never had an SSN, never had an A-number or any USCIS card. This is my first time applying for a work permit. now that anjali has her approved i-140 from brightwave we can finally file the i-765 for me which is huge.

for our last travel, We came back on July 21 — same day as Anjali but I flew through a different airport, I'd have to check which one on my I-94. our return itineraries got split up because of frequent flyer miles so we landed at different hubs on the same afternoon. I'll fill in your questionnaire this weekend once i sit down at my desk and pull the exact travel history PDF. also I made a USCIS online account in 2025 when we did my last I-539, the number is somewhere in my email, i will search my inbox for the confirmation receipt and put it in the form when i do it.

quick question for you though — a local boutique design studio here in austin called Pixel & Pine just offered me a full-time role starting as soon as i have the EAD in hand!! they are super cool about waiting a bit, but is there any way the EAD can be expedited if we include my job offer letter from Pixel & Pine or if we file with premium processing along with anjali's h-1b transfer? right now i'm just keeping busy playing in my sunday cricket league and i volunteer Saturdays at the Central Texas Food Bank sorting produce, so i'm really eager to get back to actual paid design studio work as fast as humanly possible.

Hi Helena (and no worries at all to Joaquín on that attachment the other week, we deleted it right away!).

Sorry, still haven't done the questionnaire. My weeks have been weirdly packed and every time I sit down to log in, something else comes up. I wanted to quickly check in on a couple of things before I finish it though.

First, the creative director over at Pixel & Pine texted me yesterday saying they are getting slammed with autumn branding projects and really want me to start ASAP — is there any chance at all the EAD can be expedited once we file, or is it strictly tied to regular processing times even if Anjali's H-1B goes in premium? Second, it randomly crossed my mind last night: is volunteering at the food bank OK on H-4? I only do Saturday morning shifts packing boxes at the Central Texas Food Bank and obviously it's completely unpaid community charity work that anyone can sign up for online, just want to make sure I shouldn't pause that while the application is pending.

Also, I looked at my passport bio page this morning and realized I should ask: My passport is valid until sometime in 2027 I think, do I need to renew it first? Or does USCIS not shorten the EAD card validity to match the passport expiration date?

Between watching the Indian cricket matches at ungodly hours this week and helping my parents coordinate travel for my cousin's wedding in December, my sleep schedule is completely wrecked. Hope you're having a restful weekend!

Hi Helena,

Sorry for the delay!! September completely flew by while I was wrapping up my models at Brightwave and getting everything ready for the transition to Larkspur Analytics (Gareth Okafor and Marisol Ferreira were just asking me yesterday how the filing prep was going!).

I'm attaching my latest pay stub in case you need it to show maintenance of status through the end of the month. Also I'm still not sure about the A-number — I stared at my I-140 notice again and I genuinely don't know if that number counts as a real A-number or if you only get one at the I-485 stage, so please go by whatever is on the SRC2390155123 PDF I sent in August! And I haven't forgotten the new passport scan — next week, promise. I'll just use the office scanner before I turn in my badge.

Two quick timing questions for you: when we fill out the forms for Rohan's H-4 and EAD, should Rohan's dates match mine on the new Larkspur petition, and is our planned trip to Pune Dec 18 – Jan 6 going to be a problem for either the transfer or his pending EAD/H-4? We booked refundable tickets just in case, because I remember reading somewhere that traveling while an I-539 is pending can abandon it?

Oh, and sorry to bug you again about this, but just wanted to repeat my mom's B-2 question from my first email — is a B-2 invitation letter for my mom (Sunita Kulkarni, passport P4417290) something your office can draft for us, or do we just write an informal letter ourselves?

Thank you so much for your patience with the two of us!!

Best,
Anjali
